

Press Release – Equity and Technology Project, Mount Saint Vincent University, Halifax

Released January 22nd, 2007

COMMUNITY FM RADIO BROADCAST COMING TO WOLFVILLE, NS

On March 21st an innovative community FM broadcast will be taking place, on the air live through the airwaves and across the Internet from Wolfville, N.S.

The five-day broadcast will feature a diverse mix of local musicians and singer-songwriters, as well interviews and colorful commentary by local community members, researchers, politicians, students and businesspeople.

This is a local broadcast for and by the community of Wolfville, and will provide a unique showcase for local talent, as well as a great alternative platform to discuss local issues concerning the town.

The broadcast is funded by the outreach activities of the Equity and Technology Project, Mount Saint Vincent University, Halifax, N.S. This project is investigating how technology is being used in education, paying special attention to issues around youth use of and access to internet technology, and the effects of this use. For more information, see www.equityandtechnology.com.

For further information on the broadcast event, or if you'd like to participate in any way, please contact Fred Campbell by email at fred@ryakuga.org or by phone at 902-684-3957.

Get involved in a true community radio experience!